1. From an article about coca

1 b.

People in Europe know that coca is a tropical shrub from whose leaves an alkaloid drug can be extracted. The drug is used as a narcotic and local anaesthetic. Most of Peru's native inhabitants both chew coca leaf and brew it as a tea, just as they have done for at least 3,500 years. In its raw form, the coca leaf contains less than one-half of one percent of the alkaloid cocaine. In this form, cocaine is a mild stimulant and its effect on the user is more or less equivalent to THAT of caffeine.

In 1961a United Nations treaty, however, prohibited international commerce in the coca leaf except for use in pharmaceuticals and as a flavouring agent.

1 b.

Today many countries face a somewhat more serious economic problem in the form of an unfavourable trade balance with other nations. Such an imbalance exists when the total value of a country's imports exceeds that of its exports. For example, if a country buys 25 billion dollars in products from other countries, yet sells only 10 billion dollars of its own products, its trade deficit is 15 billion. Many underdeveloped nations find themselves in this position because they lack natural resources or the industrial capacity to use these resources, and thus have to import raw materials or manufactured goods.
